Final report and recommendations available for The Current Bus Route Evaluation Project

Southeast Vermont Transit (often known as “The Current”) has just completed a project to evaluate their bus services in the Springfield/Ludlow/Bellows Falls area. This project involved a survey of existing and potential bus riders that was completed in January. A draft report was released for review in March and April, and public meetings were held in April. The final report with recommendations was revised based on comments received from those meetings and other project partners. It is now available online at <http://swcrpc.org/bus-route-evaluation-project-2016/>.

The report includes forty detailed recommendations for short term implementation actions as well as recommendations for further study. Some of the short term recommendations will start to be implemented in just a few months, including:

- Making adjustments to some schedules to reflect actual running times;
- Provide trainings, brochures and/or information on existing services;
- Evaluate some potential minor service changes to optimize services.
